

Several pieces of supporting research illustrate the influence that climate change is having on the changing patterns of rainfall in Peninsular Malaysia. Muhammad et al. (2020) further ...

The ICJ also noted that climate change disproportionately affects the poor, indigenous communities, women, and youth, and reaffirmed that States cannot ignore these risks without ...

RISING global temperatures are fuelling more frequent and intense heatwaves that pose a growing threat to human health, says a Malaysian public health expert who warns that ...

The findings are a "stark reminder that climate change is already putting significant pressure on crop production globally", says Dr Jasper Verschuur, an assistant professor of engineering and ...

Global regulators such as the European Union, United Kingdom, and United States are fast-tracking climate disclosure mandates, and Malaysia is taking firm steps in the same direction. In September 2024, Malaysia launched the ...

THE International Court of Justice (ICJ) has sent a strong message to the world: taking serious action on climate change is not just a good idea - it is a legal duty. In a landmark advisory ...

The Malaysian state of Sabah has passed a new law to regulate pollution and carbon rights while protecting native lands and communities. As The Vibes reported, Sabah's legislative assembly ...

The Malaysian government will introduce its National Climate Change Bill to parliament in the coming weeks, which will include provisions for carbon market mechanisms aimed at reducing ...

You cannot mitigate what you do not know. This fundamental truth lies at the heart of Malaysia's response to increasing climate risks that impact our people, economy and environment. From rising sea levels and heavier rainfall to more ...

The proposed National Climate Change Bill will include incentives for companies that successfully reduce their carbon emissions, says acting natural resources and environmental sustainability ...

In Malaysia, this conversation has gained further traction with the launch of the Climate Finance Innovation Lab (CFIL) on 18 June 2025, initiated by the Joint Committee on Climate Change ...

International Greentech & Eco Products Exhibition & Conference Malaysia (IGEM) organized by the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environmental Sustainability (NRES) and Co-organized by Malaysian

Malaysia climate change

Green ...

Malaysia Extreme heatwaves pose growing health threat, warns expert Climate change is driving increasingly frequent and severe heatwaves, posing a serious threat to human health Updated ...

Malaysia climate change

Web: <https://www.ichipcorp.co.za>

